Denmark’s green think tank CONCITO and University of Copenhagen’s Sustainability Science Centre are happy to announce this sustainability seminar with Brent Loken from EAT and Daniel Vennard from World Resources Institute followed by responses and debate with experts, companies and organisations from the Danish food sector.

Programme

Moderator: Katherine Richardson, leader of Sustainability Science Centre, University of Copenhagen

Session I: Presentations by EAT and WRI

14.00-14.15
Opening address: Connie Hedegaard, chairman of CONCITO

14.15-14.45
Feeding 10 billion a healthy and sustainable diet
Presentation of the EAT-Lancet Commission’s report on Food in the Anthropocene
Brent Loken, Director of Science Translation

14.45-15.15
From why to how: Nudging consumers towards a sustainable diet
Presentation of WRI’s Better Buying Lab
Daniel Vennard, Director of Better Buying Lab

15.15-15.30
Clarifying questions and comments from audience
15.30-15.45
Break

Session II: Responses from Danish experts and stakeholders and questions from audience

15.45-16.15
• Marie Trydeman Knudsen, Researcher at Aarhus University’s Department of Agroecology and member of the Danish Council on Climate Change
• Arne Astrup, professor and head of department at University of Copenhagen’s Department of Nutrition, Exercise and Sports
• Jakob Jønck, CEO, Simple Feast
• Signe Frese, CSR Director, COOP Denmark
• Jan Johannesen, Sustainability Director, Arla
• Michael Minter, Head of programme, CONCITO

16.15-16.50
Questions and comments from audience to presentations from EAT and WRI

16.50-17.00
Wrap-up by Katherine Richardson

Registration

Participation is free, but registration is required via this webpage: https://sustainability.ku.dk/lectures-congresses/nextlecture/signup/

We will only serve food for thought at the event, so bring your own drinks and refreshments.

#sustaintalk @sustainucph
#fremtidsføde @concitoinfo
#eatlancet @eatforum
#betterbuyinglab @wrifood